Enhancing Working Environments

Designed by renowned architectural practice 'van Heyningen and Howard', Kaleidoscope is an impressive five storey U-shaped building arranged around a central courtyard garden.

Kaleidoscope is the first integrated centre for the care of children and young people and the project involved bringing 12 sites into 1.

After conducting a full tender process based on a PASA contract, 8 companies were shortlisted out of 40 and this was subsequently narrowed down to 2. Project Manager, Ben Maguire explained that after conducting a survey, 80% of the staff preferred a bench concept as opposed to a traditional workstation.

Access bench system in white and silver with low mobile pedestals

Eurotek's Access bench system, with its capacious central riser and sliding top access to wire provided the ideal solution for the heavy cable management requirement. It also enhanced leg room making it easy to work together in small teams, and provided a clean, contemporary aesthetic. 'Furthermore, Eurotek's ability to provide height adjustable workstations, children's furniture, bespoke furniture as well as task and occasional seating, meant that we had the benefit of a one stop shop against a tight schedule,' commented Ben.

All 5 floors, comprising of administrative open areas, conference and meeting rooms, breakout areas, storage rooms and consultancy rooms were furnished to schedule by Eurotek's own fitters.
