

Case Study

London Ambulance Service

Brief

To furnish a new administrative support unit housing 55 workstations to strict health and safety requirements within a specified time frame.

Client

London Ambulance Service

Site

London

Product Range

Glade Contract

Pictured, an area of Eurotek's recent furniture installation at the London Ambulance Headquarters near London Bridge.

The ground floor premises are a short distance from the Service's main building in Waterloo Road and are being used by an administrative support department who have been relocated to the new site.

One of Eurotek's most flexible and popular ranges, Glade Contract, has been used throughout the installation which comprises around 55 workstations in a matching saxon oak finish with silver framing and complimentary screening.

As well being used throughout all the work areas, the Glade Contract range has also been used in the main meeting room and in the staff rest area.

Brendan Giblin, a partner in the firm of architects BBA who acted as consultants to the London Ambulance Service, said he had visited Eurotek's factory in Bognor to discuss the contract with the company's senior management. "I was aware that Eurotek were long standing suppliers to the NHS, but this was the first time I had invited them to tender for a contract. I was very impressed with the quality of the furniture and Eurotek's ability to respond quickly in order to meet our delivery and installation deadlines."

London Ambulance Estates Manager Martin Nelhams said that Eurotek had won the contract ahead of strong competition. "We were satisfied that the furniture met all our health and safety requirements and it has been very well received by the staff that use it."

Winning factors

Reputation for fast, efficient delivery service

Glade Contract met high strict health and safety requirements