Reorganisation within the various NHS Trust's has led to a major relocation exercise for the Thames Valley Health Authority. The Authority have moved to purpose built new premises on Oxford's flourishing new Business Park at Cawley.

Projects on this scale involving potentially hundreds of staff require major planning and suppliers capable of handling large scale projects within demanding timescales.

With extensive experience of the sector, in particular handling major NHS contracts, Eurotek were called in to handle all the desking requirements. The new TVHA headquarters is spread over two floors totalling 20,000 square feet. The furniture installation includes 100 Glade workstations, a separate 30 man call centre, furniture for individual offices, various meeting rooms and even a staff restaurant. The restaurant apart, the furniture throughout is in an eye-catching maple finish and silver. Desk mounted screens and seating are in a matching tulip colour. The result is a light, spacious feel to the work areas where staff can work in both individual or team situations. Eurotek have also shown their versatility by manufacturing a separate range of tables in a beech finish for the ground-floor restaurant area.

Richard Hildersley, the consultant brought in by the TVHA to oversee the project, said the style and flexibility of Eurotek's product was ideally suited to the layout and surroundings of the new headquarters.

"The installation was carried out very professionally and has been well received by the staff. A lot of thought has gone into planning the layout of the furniture and the result is a space efficient, user friendly work environment that provides us with scope for further staff expansion if necessary. With a welcome amount of flexibility, Eurotek, have provided a first class furniture solution for our offices, our call centre and our staff restaurant."
